1. List two ethical issues that arise in "Nosedive."

1. Should the real estate agent give a 20% discount to the superior with 4.5 or higher score?
2. Should the airport give priority to the superiors who's 4.2 or higher?

2. Which of the principles of involvement for engineers from chapter ten might apply to/be relevant to "Nosedive"? Explain your answer

Principle of Engineering Engagement.

Engineers should seriously consider becoming involved in helping to improve the check futures of those less fortunate than themselves, but the scoring system discriminate against low-scoring people and give high-scoring people privilege.

4. None of the schemes tied to the social-rating system shown in "Nosedive" – for example, housing prices, passenger boarding, or car rental – appear to be illegal in the show's universe. Does that mean they are ethical? Identify two basic ethical principles for global engineering, organizational ethical principles, or ethical principles for employees reviewed so far, and provide a brief explanation of how those schemes violate these principles.

No, they are not ethical. They need to avoid damage to living beings that would result in serious negative consequences, including long-term ones, to human life, but low-scoring people are discriminated against. they also should ensure that all stakeholders of their organizations are treated fairly and justly, but high-scoring people have privileges.

5. Have you or people you know been negatively affected by social media? Explain your answer. If not, then how could you foresee being negatively affected by social media?

Two years ago, Lu Han is a superstar in China and there are so many women fans who love him so much. There was one boy who is just 17 years old said that Lu Han is as beautiful as a girl and this boy despised Han for being so gay.

Then fans of Han being mad and the young boy was searched for human flesh. He was insulted on the internet by lots of girls and women. He cannot stand that and committed suicide.
